Yesterday, August 22, there was a wildfire in the Penny Creek/Lords Lake area northwest of Quilcene. The fire was approximately four acres in size but was quickly surrounded by road or wet line. It was brought under control yesterday afternoon. DNR took command of the incident. The public can expect crews to remain in the area for the next day or two.

Looking at the weather for the rest of this week and the weather radar online, it appears that there was some light precipitation in the Puget Sound overnight and there is a band of moisture that swirled around us to the east and up to BC and Alberta. It's possible that the local precipitation will clear residual particulates from the air and possibly dampen fires in eastern Washington, Alberta, and BC. The predicted precipitation intensifies over central Alberta and BC, much needed up there.

Chief Black of East Jefferson Fire Rescue said this about the dryness in Washington state: "Even though it might be cooler in the coming weeks...[it is] too dry. The National Interagency Fire Center is forecasting this current weather pattern to persist through October."

I will speak with Chief Black this week and that interview will air on Labor Day along with an interview with Karyn Stillwell, instructor of yoga and the Wim Hof Method of breathing and cold water immersion. You can Join Karyn and a merry band of cold plungers at the Fort Worden Beach Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5pm.

The City of Port Townsend Lodging Tax Advisory Committee (LTAC) invites proposals for funding activities that benefit visitors and residents. LTAC will review proposals for funding with an intent to award grants totaling $10,000 in this fall cycle. Funding for projects will range between $1,000 and $10,000 depending on the number of applicants and eligible projects. Applications can be submitted through an online portal at <https://cityofpt.us/bc/page/lodging-tax-advisory-committee>. The application deadline is Friday, September 22 and proposals will be considered at the regular meeting of LTAC scheduled for Tuesday, October 10. All proposals must meet the minimum statutory requirements of RCW 67.28, regulating the use of Lodging Tax funds.

Those who apply must demonstrate the value of the proposed activity to visitors and residents, with an increase in overnight stays and a preferred focus on the shoulder seasons – October through May. Proposals will be evaluated against other weighted criteria determined by LTAC, and applicants are asked to attend the October meeting to briefly present their proposal and field questions. In the spring round of LTAC grants, Key City Public Theater, Centrum, and Fort Worden Hospitality were all awarded grants for marketing ranging from $1,500 to $7,000. Lodging tax funds are distributed annually among a variety of initiatives, including marketing, planning, infrastructure, fee waivers, and debt service. Lodging tax totaled over $602,000 in 2022.

Co-owner of the Old Consulate Inn and LTAC Vice Chair, Nathan Barnett, says, "LTAC's vision of sustainable tourism is to reinvest community resources to enhance the lives of both residents and visitors. We hope to see proposals that reflect this vision. Working in hospitality plus serving on LTAC, PT Main Street, and Olympic Peninsula Steam, I appreciate the importance of inviting everyone to the table. Connecting visitors and residents is essential. It keeps us vibrant year-round, strengthens our social fabric – and keeps Port Townsend quirky and lively.” For more information on LTAC including RCW 67.28, grant criteria, and the yearly LTAC funding cycle go to the LTAC webpage: <https://cityofpt.us/bc/page/lodging-tax-advisory-committee>. Questions about Lodging Tax can be sent to LTAC@cityofpt.us.
